Last Semester Senior Rate Exception

Undergraduates enrolled in a four-year program who have completed eight regular (fall and spring) semesters of academic work as full-time students on main campus* and who have 11 or fewer credits to complete toward their bachelor's degree may petition through their home college to take these credits during their last semester at the College of Professional Studies tuition rate.

Undergraduates enrolled in a five-year program must have completed 10 regular semesters of academic work as full-time students on main campus* to qualify for the rate exception. There are no exceptions for this policy. Students who are able to complete their degree requirements in fewer than eight or 10 regular semesters, e.g., due to increased course loads per semester or coursework completed during summer, are not eligible for this rate exception. This rate exception can only be used for one semester.

*Full-time study abroad or study away semesters are acceptable as well
